

LAW STUDENT WHO WAS A BARTENDER DIES FROM BULLET

Ambitious Youth Worked in Bowery Saloon to Get Money for His Education.

TRIED TO END QUARREL

Laid Aside His Law Books to Play Role of Peacemaker, With Fatal Results.

Samuel Bernachowitz, who died early today in Gouverneur Hospital from a bullet wound in the head, was a victim of his passion for the law. William Nastienka, who shot him during a row in the saloon known as the "Bowery Tunnel," at Livingston street and the Bowery, is under arrest, charged with homicide, although he declares that the pistol he was brandishing was discharged accidentally.

Bernachowitz, who lived at No. 105 Chrystie street, and was twenty-one years old, went to work in the "Bowery Tunnel," which is owned by his father, in order to get money enough to keep up his law studies at the New York University. He was sitting behind the bar reading his books late last night when Nastienka, who is known as "The Turk," came into the back room of the place.

The man, who is employed as a night watchman in a moving picture place and lives at No. 2 Livingston street, was boisterous and noisy. He had several drinks and then told a character known as "Frisco Red," a hanger-on in the saloon, to go out and get him a roll. Frisco obeyed but ate three of the rolls on his way back from the bakery where he bought them.

When he handed the bag to Nastienka the night watchman leaped to his feet in a fury and started for "Frisco." The latter tried to dodge a blow aimed at his head and toppled over a table. The noise attracted the attention of Bernachowitz, who dropped his books and came running into the back room.

He began a plea for law and order in the midst of which Nastienka struck him. Bernachowitz tried to hold the watchman off but he was set upon by "Frisco" as well. In the fight that ensued Nastienka drew a pistol. He flourished it about, and suddenly, as the three men clinched, it was discharged.

Bernachowitz fell to the floor with a bullet through his left temple. The report of the revolver brought a big crowd to the "Tunnel," and as Nastienka tried to run out of the place he was grabbed and badly beaten. Patrolman Anderson of the Bowery street station finally got him out of the hands of the angry mob and summoned an ambulance for Bernachowitz. The young law student was unconscious and died without regaining his senses. According to his friends, Bernachowitz had a bright future before him, and only worked in his father's saloon to further his education.

Bought Outside by Auto.
An automobile on Fifth avenue was crossing Seventy-first street yesterday afternoon when a poorly dressed man buried himself in front of the car. The chauffeur stopped so quickly the man was not injured. Patrolman Wapley took the man to the East Sixty-seventh street station where he said: "I am Philip O'Brien, forty-nine, homeless and jobless." He was taken to Bellevue for observation.

OLD VICTORIA HOTEL SITE TO BE OFFICE BUILDING.

At One Time Regarded as Greatest Hostelry in New York—Rivalled the Old Fifth Avenue.

The Victoria, the last of the popular old hotels to give way to a commercial structure, is to be torn down to make room for a twenty-story office building. While no definite agreement has been reached between the Johnson-Kahn syndicate, owners, and George W. Sweeney, lease and manager, it is understood today that negotiations are under way that may permit the work of demolition to start April 1. When the Victoria was erected in 1893, at Broadway and Twenty-seventh street, by Paron Stevens, regarded as the greatest hotel man of his day, the eight-story red brick and stone building was regarded as about the greatest in New York. It was the headquarters of many famous personages, among them President Grover Cleveland, who with his wife always went there when in New York. The edifice was built with a view to surpassing the Fifth Avenue, at the time the most popular hotel in the country.

The Victoria was closed in 1905 and for three years had no tenant. Among other famous hotels to give way to commercial buildings in recent years were the Fifth Avenue, Ashland, Putnam, Clarendon, St. Charles, Florence, Belvidere, and Gilbey House.

New Yorker Drops Dead.
ATLANTA, March 11.—Willie Whalley of No. 201 Eighth avenue, New York, dropped dead here yesterday on the street immediately after the performance.

The tastier your food is, the more nourishment you get out of it. That is a scientific fact. So when you eat oatmeal the tastier it is, the better for you.

H-O Oatmeal is the tastiest of all oatmeals, because the cooking which we give it at the mill is done in a sealed cooker and before the oat is rolled into the tender flake.

None of the flavor escapes before you get it.

We cook it over 2 hours—you cook it 20 minutes.

Try H-O Oatmeal tomorrow, if you want to know just how good oatmeal can taste.

A package makes 36 dishes.

Checked Sports Coats

When one has said "checked," the story is not half told.

For there is no end to the variety of checks.

There is a daring black and white "diamond checked" coat made with inverted plaid in back. Silk lined. $20.

A good-looking belted-back coat in a small broken check (silk-lined, too) is $17.50.

Black and white checks shot with a bit of color are very smart. With the new belt which encircles only the sides and back, $20.

Basket cloth coats are wonderfully good-looking in big brown or Copenhagen blue checks, $30.

Rough black and white checked coats with English V-yoke and raglan sleeves have threads of blue and green running through them, $30.

Other checked models and well cut coats of serge, broadened ratine, striped blanket cloth, velour de laine, etc., from $17.50 to $32.50.

English top-coats, $40.
Sizes 14, 16 and 18 years.

Unpacking $10,000 Worth More of Cut Glass which will be added to the March sale tomorrow.

If you should ask us what this cut glass sale does not contain, we could not tell you. It includes every article cut, from a sparkling little olive or almond dish to a glittering big punch bowl or flower-piece.

It took exactly twenty-two glass-cutting factories to give us all we needed for the sale. And they gave us of their best. Cuttings and shapes are beautiful. There is much of the effective frost-like floral cutting which many housewives prefer to more solidly cut pieces.

Among the articles are bonbon dishes, compotiers, baskets, bowls, dishes, trays, jugs, tumblers, vases, jardinières, fern dishes, sugars and creams, punch bowls. Worthy of special notice are:

Nine-inch bowls, conventional design, $5 each, regularly $8.
Bon bon compotiers, floral cutting, $2.50 each, regularly $4.
4-pt. jugs, floral cutting, $5 each, regularly $7.50.
Footed bowl combinations, $4.75 each, regularly $7.
Eight-inch fern dish and plateau, $5.50, regularly $8.
Sugar and cream, $3 pair, regularly $4.50.
Celery trays, $5 each, regularly $4.50.
